1. INTERNATIONAL PARTNERSHIP AGREEMENTS

Many staff may benefit from informal collaboration with colleagues abroad that do not require AAUA's official commitment. If the agreement is at the Departmental or Faculty level, then it is only applicable to staff and students from those respective Departments or Faculties; an institutional agreement has the widest scope and is applicable to all staff and students.

- Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) - An agreement between institutions which is often the first step toward institutional collaboration. An MOU spells out mutual expectations, and identifies possible areas of collaboration.
- Memorandum of Agreement (MOA) = Usually a more specific agreement that is less binding than a formal contract, but reflects a sincere commitment to plan and implement specific activities. An MOA can be an addendum to a general MOU. Multiple department or college specific MOAs can serve as addenda to a single institutional MOU.
- Student Exchange Agreement - An agreement that allows movement of students to and from AAUA. Students pay tuition fees to home institutions for courses taken while on exchange, and may study at the host institution for up to a maximum of 2 academic years.
- Articulation Agreements- Senate approved agreements between AAUA and other recognized institutions that define the terms and conditions for consideration of admission and recognition of prior learning within the context of specific programs or credentials. Normally, the University abroad agrees to guarantee admission to students from a partner institution, as long as certain requirements (TOEFL score, GPA, minimum and maximum credit hours, etc.) are met. Upon successful admission, students may receive established credit within a program at host institution for a four or five-year degree programme.
- Joint Degree Program Agreement = Students from a partner institution pursue studies leading to a degree at their home institution and simultaneously a degree from AAUA (a single degree conferred simultaneously by two institutions).
- Dual Degree Program Agreement = Students engage in studies at AAUA and at another institution, usually sequentially, receiving separate degrees from each institution (a B.Sc. or B.A. from the partner institution and M.Sc or M.A. from AAUA, for example.) Dual degree programs often shorten the time it would take to pursue the two degrees separately.
- Short-Term Incoming Study Abroad Program Agreement = A foreign or domestic partner organization or institution recruits students from another country to study at foreign university on a non-degree basis.
- Faculty Exchange Agreement - An agreement that describes the respective commitments by faculty units to enable movement of Lecturers between two institutions. This agreement will commonly provide details on funding available, travel costs, provision of accommodation or research facilities, salary/ remuneration, reporting, and possible areas of responsibility while on exchange.
- Research and Development Collaboration Agreement - An agreement between institutions for research and development collaboration in a specific area, including the terms and conditions of collaboration. All agreements are finalised through the Centre for Research and Development.

- Partnership Conference Agreement - An agreement that describes the respective responsibilities between institutions that are working in cooperation to hold a joint conference on a regular basis (annually, biennially, semi-annually).
- Visiting Expert/Professor or Adjunct Professorship
The visiting expert will be expected to interact closely with faculty and students with the aim of strengthening its existing activities and/or assisting in the establishment of new lines of research. The visiting expert will teach postgraduate courses, may deliver seminars, supervise students, conduct research and discuss future collaborative partnerships.

Others include Exchange of graduate students for study and research, Visiting International Student Program, Exchange of academic materials and other information (including library materials and resources) and Joint collaborative grant proposals.
